Asset Class Performance

*Hedge fund returns are lagged 1 month. Sources: FactSet, Morningstar. As of June 30, 2022.

Fixed Income (June)

- Anticipation of the Federal Reserve's rate hike in June pushed rates higher in the first half of the month, but growing concerns of a recession caused rates to revert as the month progressed.
- Fears of slowdown further impacted credit markets and spread sectors generally underperformed Treasuries in the risk-off market.
- Rising rates abroad, coupled with a strengthening U.S. dollar, negatively impacted non-U.S. debt.

Equity (June)

- Equity markets globally added further to losses in June, ending what has been a difficult first half of the year. Concerns included high and persistent inflation, weakening economic data, hawkish central banks, and continued supply issues.
- European markets were lower due to high energy prices following further sanctions on Russia and a strengthening US dollar, which also weighed on emerging market equity returns.

Real Asset / Alternatives (June)

- REITs were lower in June as investors repriced risks with higher rates. Various snags in travel and lodging were seen negatively, leading to poor returns.
- Commodity markets saw prices roll over following a months-long rally, led lower by energy prices as investors priced in an economic slowdown and countries reduced their dependence on Russia and Ukraine.

Fixed Income Market Update

U.S. Treasury Yield Curve

The U.S. yield curve flattened in June as the Federal Reserve raised its target rate by 75 basis points. However, longer-dated rates compressed in the back half of the month on growing concerns of a slowing economy.

Index Performance Attribution (June 2022)

Spread sectors generally underperformed Treasuries in the risk-off environment, with notable weakness in the high yield sector, as investors digested what the Fed's impact will be on the economy.

Credit Market Spreads – Trailing 5 Years

Corporate bond spreads, both investment grade and high yield, jumped in June. A relatively strong earnings season and supportive fundamentals were not enough to overcome investors' concerns of a growing probability of an economic slowdown. Spreads have now moved back above their 10-year averages.

Equity Market Update

Market Capitalization & Style Performance (June 2022)

Equity markets were consistently negative for the month across regions, market caps and styles. Reversing the prior trend, value lagged growth for the month in the US and developed markets. Emerging markets fared slightly better as an easing of COVID restrictions in China gave investors hope.

U.S. Equities – Returns by Sector (June 2022)

Despite negative returns across all market segments, the discrepancies were stark as investors piled into defensive sectors at the cost of cyclicals. The energy sector was hit hard by prices rolling over from prior highs.

Real Asset Market Update

Real Assets Performance

Commodities turned negative in June, driven by a stronger dollar, rising recession fears with weak economic data and the Fed's recent outsized hikes. Natural gas fell over 33% in June; crude held up slightly better. Precious metals also held up relatively well given their defensive qualities.

REIT Sector Performance

REITs continued their slide in June, falling alongside broader equities. While returns were broadly negative, tech-oriented segments, including industrial, towers and data centers, fared best. Meanwhile, lodging REITs sharply reversed course after early year strength, as recession fears and flight cancellations have hampered the sector's outlook.
